

European Court notifies Turkish Government of fourth batch of 1,000 applications concerning convictions for terrorism offences based on use of ByLock messaging application

The European Court of Human Rights has today given notice¹ to the Government of Türkiye of another five cases covering 1,000 applications concerning convictions for membership of an armed terrorist organisation, based on the alleged use of the encrypted messaging application called “ByLock”.

The background to these applications, and the 3,000 others for which notification was given in December 2023, April 2024 and July 2024, was set out by the Court’s Grand Chamber case Yüksel Yaçinkaya v. Türkiye (application no. 15669/20).

The core issues raised by the applicants under Article 7 (no punishment without law) and Article 6 § 1 (right to a fair trial) of the European Convention on Human Rights have already been judged in Yüksel Yaçinkaya. In that judgment the Court highlighted that there were over 8,000 applications on the Court’s docket involving similar complaints. These 1,000 apparently comparable applications are the fourth batch for which notification has been given to the Turkish Government. That now brings the total number of applications for which notification has been given to 4,000.

The statements of facts in the five cases have been submitted to the parties and are available on the Court’s website:

Kılıçarslan v. Türkiye (application no. 16234/18) and 199 others
Çelebi v. Türkiye (no. 45584/21) and 199 others
Türkyilmaz v. Türkiye (no. 9439/22) and 199 others
Kuzucu v. Türkiye (no. 45140/22) and 199 others
Başoğlu v. Türkiye (no. 52109/22) and 199 others

The Court’s rulings in the cases will be made at a later stage.

The applicants are 1,000 Turkish nationals. They lodged their applications with the European Court of Human Rights between 2018 and 2023.

The applications mainly concern their convictions for membership of an armed terrorist organisation described by the Turkish authorities as the Fetullahçı Terör Örgütü / Paralel Devlet Yapılanması (FETÖ/PDY). The authorities consider FETÖ/PDY to be behind the attempted coup d’état of 15 July 2016.

According to the applicants, their convictions were based on their alleged use of the encrypted messaging application called “ByLock”, which the Turkish courts held had been designed for the exclusive use of FETÖ/PDY members under the guise of a global application. That meant that anyone who had used Bylock could, in principle, be convicted on that basis alone of membership of an armed terrorist organisation.

¹ Under Rule 54 § 2 (b) of the Rules of Court: “the Chamber or the President of the Section may decide to give notice of the application or part of the application to the respondent Contracting Party and invite that Party to submit written observations thereon and, upon receipt thereof, invite the applicant to submit observations in reply.”

The applicants mainly complain that their trial and conviction for membership of the FETÖ/PDY violated the principle of no punishment without law under Article 7 of the European Convention and/or the right to a fair trial under Article 6 § 1 of the Convention.

As in the notification of the previous 3,000 applications (in December 2023, April and July 2024), the Court decided not to put any questions to the parties or to require any observations. The Government may submit observations so long as they refer essentially to the factual aspects of the applications and not to preliminary objections or legal issues already decided by the Court in Yüksel Yalçınkaya.
