

EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS
COUR EUROPÉENNE DES DROITS DE L'HOMME

FIRST SECTION

Application no. 28549/06
Aleksandr Aleksandrovich VOLOSHIN against Russia lodged on 21 June 2006

STATEMENT OF FACTS

THE FACTS

The applicant, Mr Aleksandr Aleksandrovich Voloshin, was a Russian national, who was born in 1982 and lives in Moscow. He was represented before the Court by Mr V.V. Aleshnya and Ms T.V. Aleshnya, lawyers practising in Moscow. In the course of the proceedings, the applicant died. Ms Antonina Nikolayevna Voloshina, the applicant's mother, wished to pursue his application before the Court, represented by the same lawyers.

The applicant has been convicted in criminal proceedings of a drug offence. The principal evidence against him derived from a test purchase conducted in accordance with Section 6 of the Operational-Search Activities Act.

At his trial the applicant claimed that the offence in question was committed as a result of entrapment by the authorities. He alleged the involvement of an agent provocateur. These objections were dismissed.

The first-instance judgment was held by the Chertanovkiy District Court of Moscow of 16 November 2005. It was upheld by the Moscow City Court on 21 December 2005.

COMPLAINTS

The applicant complained that he had been unfairly convicted of a drug offence incited by the police and that his plea of entrapment had not been properly examined in the domestic proceedings, in violation of Article 6 of the Convention. These complaints fall to be examined under Article 6 § 1 of the Convention.

The applicant also complained under Article 3 of the Convention about the alleged ill-treatment by the police at the time of his arrest. He also relied on Articles 5, 8, 13 and 17 but made no separate allegation under these Articles.

QUESTIONS

1. Did the undercover technique used to investigate the drug offence in the present case amount to an entrapment (see Ramanauskas v. Lithuania ([GC], no. 74420/01, § 51, ECHR 2008-...)?

2. Before the applicant was approached by the undercover agent (the police agent, collaborator, informant or other person acting on the authorities' instructions in the test purchase concerned), did the investigative authorities possess preliminary information concerning the applicant's pre-existing criminal intent? Did this information come from a verifiable source unconnected with the individuals involved in the undercover operation (see Vanyan v. Russia, no. 53203/99, § 49, 15 December 2005, and Khudobin v. Russia, no. 59696/00, § 134, ECHR 2006-... (extracts))?

3. Did the undercover agent exert such an influence on the applicant as to incite the commission of an offence that would otherwise not have been committed? Was the applicant subjected to any pressure, either through prompting, persuasion, pleading compassion or otherwise, on the part of the undercover agent to commit the offence (see Malininas v. Lithuania, no. 10071/04, § 37, 1 July 2008, Vanyan, cited above, §§ 11 and 49 and Ramanauskas, cited above, § 67)?

4. Did the authorities have good reasons for mounting the covert operation (see Ramanauskas, cited above, §§ 63 and 64, and Malininas, cited above, § 36)? Was the test purchase a part of an anti-drug trafficking operation targeting the supply chain? What other investigative activities were carried out as regards the applicant prior to the test purchase?

5. Was the procedure authorising the test purchase clear and foreseeable (Vanyan, cited above, §§ 46 and 47, and Khudobin, cited above, § 135)? Did the decision authorising it refer to the information as to the reasons for and purposes of the planned test purchase?

6. Was the test purchase carried out in the present case subject to any judicial control or other independent supervision (see Miliniénė v. Lithuania, no. 74355/01, § 39, 24 June 2008)?

7. Was the applicant afforded adequate procedural safeguards enabling him/her to raise a complaint about entrapment before the national courts (see Ramanauskas, cited above, §§ 69-70)?

8. Was the issue of entrapment examined in an adversarial, thorough and comprehensive manner? Was all relevant information, particularly regarding the purported suspicions about the applicant's previous conduct, put openly before the trial court or tested in an adversarial manner (see V. v. Finland, §§ 76 et seq., and Malininas, § 36, both cited above; and Bulfinsky v. Romania, no. 28823/04, 1 June 2010)?

9. Did the courts have access to the full file relating to the operational-search activities against the applicant prior to the test purchase? What other material did the courts examine to answer the plea of entrapment?

10. Did the courts assess the reasons why the operation had been mounted, the extent of the police's involvement in the offence and the nature of any incitement or pressure to which the applicant had been subjected? Was the applicant given an opportunity to state his case on each of these points (see Ramanauskas, cited above, § 71)?

11. Were the undercover agents and other witnesses who could testify on the issue of incitement heard in court and cross-examined by the defence (see Lüdi v. Switzerland, 15 June 1992, § 49, Series A no. 238; Sequeira v. Portugal (dec.), no. 73557/01, ECHR 2003-VI; Shannon v. the United Kingdom (dec.), no. 67537/01, ECHR 2004-IV, Bulfinsky, § 45, cited above; and Kuzmickaja v. Lithuania (dec.), no. 27968/03, 10 June 2008)?

12. Having regard to the above, did the applicant have a fair hearing in the determination of the criminal charge against him, in accordance with Article 6 § 1 of the Convention?
